We are glad to report that about one hundred subscriptions have been received since the Jan. issue of the Record. We are grateful for these and for the many words of commendation which accompanied the remittances, showing as they do a keen interest in the work we are undertaking and an appreciation of its value. But we are not content with the results obtained; that condition of mind will be ours only when we have received one thousand subscriptions. In this issue we are sending you an addressed envelope and an enclosure which is self explanatory. If you send one dollar we will credit you with a subscription for four years. That will, we believe, appeal to many. But you need not be limited to one dollar—any amount from twenty five cents up will be credited to your account. Subscribe now and thereby actively support your Alma Mater.

We are forced by the limited space in one issue of the Record to make the March issue a War Special as well as the February number, if we are to give to our readers the information concerning our men at the Front which we believe will be of interest to them. The list of men grows daily. Who would think that out of two hundred and forty enlisted men this College would send into the Army, in officers alone five Colonels, two of them Brigadiers, fourteen Majors, forty seven Captains and sixty five Lieutenants? He who knows anything of the technical knowledge that an officer, especially of the higher ranks must possess, will not cease to marvel at these figures. It is a justification of the existence of the College that its sons are the men who most readily master the arts of war.

So it is with the Non-Commissioned Officers. Most of our men who are not Officers are of this class, the men who in every army constitute its backbone. And as we look over the list we see them as the youngsters of yesterday. And youngsters, often, they are compared with the men they lead. Those qualities of leadership which place them in command of others, the College must have cultivated else all the signs are false. And those who still are privates have remained so by choice, or need but the opportunity to show the same qualities as their friends. Truly the war has brought the Colleges of the country into their own.

Most of our readers, no doubt, are not aware that we have had an Officers Training Corps at Mount Allison since the beginning of the war. Organized by Col. A. H. Borden and directed by him for some time during the year 1914—'18, it has continued actively since that time to train men for service in the Army. About twenty five of our men now serving as officers took their Lieutenants’ course in the Mt. A. U. Contingent C. O. T. C. Dr. P. E. Wheelock of the Physics Dept. is the O. C. of the unit with the rank of Captain.

MISSING

Southgate, L. Murray, '12
Craig, A. F., '13

DIED

Colin G. Grey, Eng., '15
Grey entered McGill in Fall of 1915 and soon left there to enlist in the 8th Batt., in Nova Scotia. Of a delicate constitution, the exposure was too much for him and he was discharged as unfit for further service. He went to a Sanatorium in Ontario and died there a short time ago.

MacKay, Arthur H., Eng., '11
Died of Spinal meningitis "Somewhere in France."

Pearson, Harold G., '13—'14
His early education was obtained in Sussex. In 1913 he entered Mt. A., intending to study for the ministry. He enlisted in the 104th and was made Assistant Paymaster. In England he was transferred to the Pay and Record office and while engaged there contracted pleurisy from which he died.

PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

Bell, Winthrop P., '04
When war broke out Bell was in Germany a student at the University of Gottingen from which he had just been granted his Doctor of Philosophy degree. He was interned in the civilian internment camp at Ruhleben where he is at the present time. Bell is one of the most brilliant of our younger graduates and was about to leave Germany for Harvard University where he had received an appointment in the Department of Philosophy, when war was declared.

He is a son of A. M. Bell, of Halifax, and brother of R. P. Bell, '07.

Hand, Wilfred, 'Ac.'

Hand's home is in Woodstock. He went overseas with the 20th Battalion from St. John. Further particulars are not yet in our possession.

McAlpine, Hugh G., Ac., '06—'06
McAlpine went with the first contingent and was wounded and captured at the Battle of Langemark. was in hospital for eight months but is now working in the camp at Gessen, Germany, unloading parcels for prisoners. His address is 2062, Hugh G. McAlpine, Co. of Prisoners, No. 6 Barracks E, Gessen, Hasse, Germany.

Wells, Douglas, Ac.

Wells was wounded in Dec., 1915, and taken prisoner. He was so seriously wounded as to be incapacitated for further service and in a recent exchange of prisoners he was among those set free. He is now in Switzerland.

DECORATIONS

Capt. G. G. Anglin, '14-'15, M. C.

Capt. Anglin went overseas as a Captain in the 64th battalion in which he had enlisted as a Lieutenant in the summer of 1915. When his battalion was broken up he was transferred to the 26th New Brunswick Battalion, holding his rank. He served with that famous battalion until wounded in a raid which he led on a German trench. A bomb thrown at him struck his haversack which was filled with bombs, smashing them to bits and embedding pieces of them in his side. For his work in this raid he was given the Military Cross. The London Royal Gazette, dealing with his work said of him: "For conspicuous gallantry in action. He led a successful raid with great courage and initiative. Later, although wounded he continued to lead and encourage his men". His brother, Lyman Anglin, '14-'15 went overseas as Sergeant in the 64th and was transferred to the 21st. They are sons of Dr. J. Anglin, Superintendent of the Asylum in Fairville, N. B.

Captain Eric Dennis, Ac., '10-'11 M. C.

He was one of the first to offer his services in Nova Scotia. He was on Home Service for a short time and was then transferred to the 46th Battalion. In England he was made Adjutant. He gave up his rank in the 46th to get to France with the 2nd Battalion as a Lieutenant. At the Somme his battalion did great service and he was promoted on the field to a captain and given command of his company. He was three times recommended for the Military Cross in Sept. and October. One of the reports reads "Lieut. Eric Reginald Dennis is recommended for gallant conduct and conspicuous bravery. Two men were killed and a number buried during an intense bombardment. Regardless of personal safety, Lieut. Dennis finally succeeded in rescuing those who had been buried and his prompt action undoubtedly saved the lives of at least six of these. The conduct of this officer stands out above all others and I cannot recommend him too highly." He has recently been gazetted as one of those receiving the Military Cross.

Dennis was a student at Acadia after leaving Mount Allison. He is only twenty years old, a son of Senator Dennis of Halifax.

Major James Wallace Forbes, '99 D. S. O.

Major Forbes volunteered for active service immediately upon the outbreak of war. He was attached to the 5th (Winnipeg) Battalion. He was kicked by a horse in England which necessitated a delicate operation and prevented him from going to the front with his own battalion. He was transferred to the 17th (N. S.) Battalion, though for only a few days before going to the 15th Battalion shortly after Langemarck. He passed safely through Festubert, Givenchy and other battles but at Zillebeke was severely wounded in the legs by shell fire. In the meantime he had been promoted on the field to Major. After several weeks in England he was invalided to Canada in Aug., 1916. While here the D. S. O. was conferred upon him for bravery in the field. Major Forbes married Lena Rowe, '99, a class mate of his, who is a sister of Major Frank Rowe, '98-'11. Major Forbes has recently left his home in Moncton to rejoin his battalion.

Liet. C. G. McDougall, '11, D. C. M.

He was formerly a Sergeant in the 4th Battery, C. F. A., and received the Distinguished Conduct Medal for his splendid work at Givenchy. He was attached to the 2nd Field Guns put into the trenches at "Ducks Hill" during that famous fight. After these guns had effected their purpose of levelling the opposing parapets, they were hit by direct hits from enemy guns with heavy casualties in their crews. Sergeant McDougall carried his wounded lieutenant to safety, under heavy fire for which he was decorated. He is mentioned in Sir Max Aitken's book "Canada in Flanders". His two brothers are also serving in the army. Charlie has recently been given a commission. He will be remembered as one of the best all round athletes Mount A. has produced as well as a first rank student.

Tennyson A. MacDonald, '11-'15 M. M.

MacDonald enlisted in the 1st Siege Battery in July, 1915 as a Signaller. He was recommended for the D. C. M. for repairing wires under heavy fire and was given the Military Medal. He was badly wounded in the shoulder, abdomen, arm and legs by shrapnel, the left leg being broken above and below the knee. He is in the Lord Derby War Hospital in England and is now able to sit up. His leg will probably be 'stiff as a result of his wounds.

Major Cyril B. North, '94-'96, '98-'10 M. C.

North has had a spectacular career. He enlisted as a private in the 6th Field Co. at the beginning of the war. In April, 1915 he was made Lance Corporal and a little later was transferred to the Imperial Army as Acting Lieutenant in the 177th Co., Royal Engineers. Two weeks later he was wounded by machine gun bullet and spent three months in England recovering. On returning to his company he was made First Lieutenant and a little later Captain and then on appeal from Canadian Headquarters he was returned to the Canadians and made Major commanding the 1st Can. Tunnelling Co. When in the Royal Engineers, North, then a Captain, rallied his Engineers and a body of men whose officers had lost their heads and repelled a furious attack. A staff enquiry led to him being recommended for the Military Cross. During the battle of Ypres he took a prominent part in the building of a bridge over the Yser Canal under heavy fire. At another time single handed he held a mine gallery while a companion went back for explosives to destroy a counter mining shaft. Together they blew up the whole works. North was a civil engineer before the war in Nelson, B. C. His home is in Hantsport, N. S.

G. Bradford Beer, Ac.

He enlisted in Nov., 1914 and until Feb., 1915 was on home service in Halifax. He then enlisted in the 2nd
Heavy Battery and in Sept. arrived in France with his battery. He has had seventeen months continuous service. In June, 1915, he was recommended for the D. C. M. for repairing wires under heavy fire at Ypres, but we have not yet heard whether the recommendation was acted on. He is now in England taking a course in the Officer Training Corps.

Miss Annie Strong, '06—'10, R. R. R.

At the beginning of the war, Miss Strong was a Nursing Sister in the Military Hospital, Quebec. She went overseas in the First Contingent to France, where she assisted in the Establishment of the First Canadian Hospital. She is now matron at the Boulogne Base Hospital and has, as an associate, Miss Eleanor Gordon of Gagetown, P. E. I., (J. C. '06—'07).

Among the last Kings Birthday Honors the Royal Red Cross was bestowed on Miss Strong. The Mount Allison Red Cross Society has liberally supported Miss Strong's work with various money contributions.

Lieut. John Godwin, '11

Killed in action "Somewhere in France" on July 8th, 1916. Before enlisting he was a member of the staff of the House of Commons. He was recommended for the Military Cross but was killed in action before receiving the distinction.

WOUNDED AND SICK

Capt. G. G. Anglin, '14—'15, M. C.

His experiences have already been told in describing the work for which he received the Military Cross.

D. Irving Charters, Ac., '10—'11

He was one of the very first to enlist in Sackville at the beginning of the war. Attached to the 12th Batt., and later drafted to the 4th. He was shell-shocked at Festubert in May and was discharged from hospital in September. He is now attached to Headquarters.

Lieut. Edward A. Johnson, Ac., '11—'12

Was originally in the Medical Corps and left that Corps for a commission in the Infantry with the 4th Battalion. He was wounded at Courcelette and has been home on leave for a couple of months. Recently he passed through St. John on his return to his battalion. Lieut. Johnson fought in the famous Regina Trench.

Major J. W. Forbes, '99, D. S. O.

At Zillebeke while gallantly leading his company he was severely wounded in the legs by a high explosive shell which burst near by, killing and wounding several of his men. After several weeks in an English hospital, he was invalided home to Moncton in August, 1916. Just recently he left to rejoin his unit. The D. S. O. has been conferred upon him as already noted.

Major Cecil R. Mersereau, '13—'14

Was seriously wounded at the Second Battle of Hooge on June 3rd., 1916. He was an officer of considerable experience in the Militia when war broke out. He enlisted in the 12th Batt., and was made a Sergeant. His proficiency won for him a Lieutenancy and later a Captaincy in the battalion in command of "B" Company. He gave up his rank to go to France to the 22nd. Later he was transferred to the 35th and was wounded as above stated. He was invalided home and later offered command of "C" Company in the 23rd N. B. Ktites now recruiting in Fredericton.

Lieut. Malcolm Hollett, '15

Rhodes scholar for Newfoundland. No particulars are known except that he has recently been wounded. He is with the 2nd Newfoundland Regiment.

Gunner Tennyson A. MacDonald, '11—'15, M. M.

His wounds have already been described.

Lieut. Cecil Hicks, Ac., '08—'09

Went over in the 39th Batt. He was wounded at Ypres on June 1st, 1915. He is now taking a course in a Military School. He was a member of the Bank of Nova Scotia Staff in Sackville when war broke out. His brother, W. B. Hicks, Ac., is in the 12th Royal Can. Highlanders.

Lieut. Frank M. Smith, '12

Rhodes Scholar from Mt. A. in 1912. He was at Oxford when war broke out and was given a commission in the 6th Lancashire and Yorkshire Regiment. He was wounded at Loos and invalided home. While here he gave an address in Beethoven of very great interest to the audience. On rejoining his regiment he was again wounded and is now on light duty in England.

Lieut. David McAlpine, Ac., '05—'06.

He enlisted in the 1st Batt. in Edmonton, and won a commission after graduation promotion. He was transferred to the C. M. R. and was in action for several months, until finally he was invalided home, suffering from shell-shock.

Hugh McAlpine, Ac., '05—'06

He is a prisoner in Germany as already stated, being wounded and captured at the Battle of Langemark. He is a brother of Lieut. David McAlpine and their eldest brother, who was not a Mt. Allison student, was also in the Army, having been killed on the Somme in September.

Lieut. B. W. Russell, '08

He qualified for a lieutenant in artillery in December, 1915, but since there was no immediate opening in the artillery he accepted a commission in the 64th Batt. He was in England only a short time before being sent to France to the 5th C. M. R. He was wounded at the Somme near Courcelette on October 12th, '16, by shrapnel. Returning to Canada on leave he has since been declared unfit for further service and discharged.

Major A. D. Carter, '13—'14

He was originally a Lieutenant in the 26th as Machine-gun officer and was wounded in the famous Crater Fight in which that Battalion took part. He was invalided home and after being convalescent he was given his majority and command of "A" Co. in the 140th. Some time after his arrival in England he was given charge of a Discharge Depot there.

Sergt. Major Norman Fawcett, Ac., '07—'09

He was in the Mechanical Transport of the 1st Div. Ammunition Park as Sergeant Major. He was sick for some time in France and was wounded at Ypres. Later he was invalided home and is now with the Special Service Co. in St. John. He has a brother, Sgt. Murray Fawcett, Ac., '19—'11 in the Army Service Corps.

Lieut. Norman H. Wetmore, '14—'15

He was O. C. of "A" Co., of the Mt. A. Officer's Training Corps before going overseas in the 64th. He was transferred to the 26th with Gerald Anglin and was wounded in the head at Courcelette. He was invalided home and is now recuperating at Bloomfield Station, N. B.
Colonel A. H. Borden, '03
As everyone knows Col. Borden was chiefly responsible for raising the Nova Scotia Highland Brigade of which he is Brigadier. He was sent to the front before his battalion went over, to get experience and has been slightly wounded. Col. Borden organized and trained the M. A. C. O. T. C. Major Cyril B. North, '04—'06, M. C.
His record has already been noted under Mount A. men winning distinctions. He was wounded by a machine gun bullet and was in England on sick leave for about three months.

Lieut. Roland Smith
He is a brother of Lieut. Frank Smith, '12 and enlisted in the 26th as private and gradually won promotion until he was given a commission. He was wounded in the leg in Sept., 1915, but returned to active duty and after Courselette was again sent to hospital, suffering from his old wounds. So both he and his brother have been wounded twice.

Col. F. B. Black, '87
While Brigade Major in the C. M. R., he was wounded in the leg and was invalided home. On returning to England he was given charge of a training Brigade at Shorncliffe. The death of his brother, Walter, recorded in the last issue of the Record recalled him to Canada again. Col. Black is a member of Board of Regents and former member of the N. B. government.

Staff Sergeant Gordon C. Emmerson, M.C., '00—'02
Enlisted in the 30th Batt. in 1914. He was transferred to the 7th Batt. in France and was seriously wounded at Festubert, May 22nd., 1915. He was in hospital until December, 1915, when he was declared unfit for further service. He is now in the General Auditor's Office in London.

Capt. Karl E. Hollis, '06—'08
He is in the Army Medical Corps and has recently been invalided to England, suffering with paralysis. After recovery he spent eight months attached to a Convalescent Hospital in England until sent to Canada on account of poor health. He is now improved in health and will complete his course at McGill in medicine next fall. The Pick-up family has done well. Walter and Will are brothers, and their older brother Sam, who has been rejected previously because of ill health, is now home on a short vacation before enlisting.

Benjamin F. McManus, Ac., '08—'09
He enlisted in Aug., 1914 in 14th Batt. from Montreal. He passed safely through the battles of Neuve Chapelle, Langemarck, Ypres, and St. Julien. At Festubert, he was badly wounded. One bullet broke bones in his foot, another passed through his left arm and one passing through his arm pit, came out just over his heart. After crawling twenty five yards to a shell hole, he lay for five hours until picked up by stretcher bearers. He was in hospitals in France and England until convalescent, when he was transferred to the Pay and Record Office, unfit for further service.

Arthur Steel, Ac., '04—'06
He enlisted in Montreal in the 42nd Royal Canadian Highlanders and has been in the trenches since Oct., 1915. He was wounded in the ankle and invalided to London hospital until fit for active service, when he returned to his old battalion. He is a son of Rev. George Steel, D. D., 1916.

Gunner F. L. Snowball, Ac., '10—'11
He enlisted in Nov., 1915, and went overseas in Dec. of that year. He was injured in Oct., 1916, and returned to an English hospital from which he was cleared and reported for duty again on the 30th of December, 1916. He is a son of W. B. Snowball of Martha, N. B.

Geo. W. Taylor, Ac., '13—'14
He enlisted in November, 1914, in the 26th Battalion and went to France with that battalion as a bomber. He was wounded in the crater fight in October, 1915, losing the sight of his left eye. He is now doing light duty in England.

Major Cyril B. North, '04—'06, '08—'10, M. C.
Wounded as already mentioned in describing his winning of the Military Cross.

Stanley Chambers, '10—'11
His experiences have been described by newspapers all over the English speaking world and a story so wonderful as his seems hardly credible. They demonstrate again that truth is stranger than fiction.

He was one of the first five to enlist at the outbreak of war in the 10th Battalion in Saskatoon. He went into the line at Ypres after the first gas attack of the war with his battalion of 1050 strong and came out with 160. The next day he was shell shocked and his eyesight in a few hours was gone. He spent four months in England, in a hospital, trying to recover his sight, but was finally invalided home stone blind. He came home on the Hesperian and when that ship was torpedoed he was bundled into a boat which upset on being lowered, throwing him into the sea. When he came to the surface he could see. He was picked up and landed at Queens-town, finally reaching Canada on the Coriscan. His straightforward story told to many audiences in the Maritime provinces is one of the most thrilling of the war.

Sergeant Frank W. Fraser '12

He enlisted in Montreal when the first call came, with the 14th Batt. in which Don Trapnell enlisted at the same time. They were together until the First Battle of Ypres, when the latter was killed. Fraser was wounded in the second Battle of Ypres, June 4th, 1916, so he had almost two years of service. He was wounded in “No Man’s Land” while trying to rescue a wounded officer for which it was believed he would be decorated. He was very severely wounded in the thigh and has been in the hospital until recently, when he was given light work in the Audit Office in London, Mount Allison people in London have met him there and say that “he looks rather thin and walks with a cane but is getting along fine.” His brother, Fred, is a Lieut. in the Army, but has not been a Mount Allison student.

Lieut. R. W. Bartlett

He went overseas with the 1st Newfoundland Regiment, with which he was sent to Suvla Bay, Gallipoli. With him were Lloyd Woods, '12-'14, Ralph Herder, '13-'14 and William Hutchings, '11-'14. He was badly wounded and sent to England. Lieut. R. McL. Armstrong, Eng., '16 in a letter speaks of having heard of him through Lieut. Ralph Herder, '13-'14. Bartlett is now in an Imperial Tunnelling Co.

Lieut. John Wiggins, A.C.

He enlisted in the 9th Winnipeg Rifles early in the war. In the early summer of 1916, while on furlough, he visited the Cloth Hall at Ypres which at that time was largely destroyed and there in a dugout he found a copy of the Mount Allison Argosy. He never knew who left it there. Shortly after he was gassed at Ypres and spent some time in hospital and later he was given a position in the Audit Office. On complete recovery, he took a course for a commission and was appointed to the 56th Batt., in which he was Acting Adjutant. Recently, after two months in the trenches he has been wounded again.

Capt. H. E. Thomas

He went over with the 56th as Chaplain, but was forced through ill health to give up his work and return to Canada. He is now stationed in Saskatoon, though his health is not yet completely restored.

Gordon Barrett

He went overseas with the 46th Battalion and has since been wounded, though the details are not in our possession. He is now working in the Pay and Record Office, London.

Sergt. W. Lloyd Woods, '12-'14

He enlisted in the 1st Newfoundland Regiment at the outbreak of the war. With his regiment he was sent to the Dardanelles where he became sick with fever and was sent to England to recuperate in a hospital in Bristol from which he was discharged in Jan., 1916. That of course is some time ago. Recently we have not heard of him.

Gunner A. C. Dinnis

Wounded in July 22, in Mametz Wood by shrapnel in right arm. In Dec. had returned to duty at a Canadian Base. In a letter he speaks of seeing a Mt. A. sweater in the distance which he found to contain Henry Lewis.

L. Cpl. Heber Angel, '14-'15

Has been slightly wounded in thigh, arm and face. He is now in the 11th Stat. Hosp., Rouen.

Capt. Harold Johnson

Wounded at front, has recovered and is doing clerical work in London.

Pte. J. H. Palmer

Of No. 2 Ambulance Corps, has been in a hospital for nearly two months, recovering from wounds and shell-shock. He is about ready to return to the base. R. M. Palmer, his brother, is in the 167th Siege Battery.

E. C. Kirk

Has been wounded, but the details are lacking. He is in a convalescent home in Regina.

Grover C. Beazley, '14-'16

He went over with the 7th Can. Stat. Hosp. Recent information concerning him stated that he was to be invalidated home, unfit for further service.

J. Earle Wilson, '08-'09

A letter in the Argosy from P. Fraser speaks of him having been wounded. He enlisted early in the war in the 48th Highlanders.

Douglas Wells

His experience has already been described as a prisoner of war.

Nelson Richardson, A.C., '14-'15

He went overseas in the 6th C. M. R., and was later transferred to the 5th C. M. R. He was wounded in the summer and spent some months in hospital from which he has recently been discharged.

Capt. James Gordon Heat, A.C., '06-'07

Received commission in London in June, 1915 in R. A. M. C., and was made Captain in June, 1916. He served at the Dardanelles where he contracted fever. He recovered and later served in hospitals in England, and in France. He is now attached as Medical Officer to the King's Own Leicester Light Infantry at the front.

William Hutchings, '11-'14

He went overseas with the 1st Newfoundland Regiment and was sent to the Dardanelles. He was wounded and latest information concerning him said he was on light duty in England.

Raymond D. Stiles

He enlisted in the 85th Batt. in the Fall of 1915 and after continued sickness for some time was discharged as unfit for further service.

MILITARY PERSONALIA

Lieut. Col. Albert H. Anderson, '90

After taking his degree, Col. Anderson studied Law at Dalhousie and shortly after entered the Army. He is in the Ordnance Dept. and is now stationed in St. John. Col. Anderson has been promoted since the war began.

Lieut. Col. Frank P. Day, '03

He is O. C. of the 155th, one of the battalions in the Nova Scotia Highland Brigade. When the war broke out Day was Professor of English at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh. On resigning his position he was appointed Junior Major of the 85th Battalion, then recruiting in Nova Scotia, under the command of Lieut. Col. A. H. Borden, '03 a class-mate of his. When the 155th was organized, Day was given the command of it and is now in England with his battalion. He is a brother of Capt. Fred B. Day, '95. Day was the first Rhodes Scholar sent to Oxford by Mount Allison and at that time was an officer in the King Edward Horse.

Capt. John H. Chipman, '09—'10

He enlisted in the 92nd and went to England in a draft of men and officers. He was sent to the Front as machine gun officer in the 15th, in March, 1916. He was in the Battle of Zillebeek in June in which his battalion was badly cut up. In July he was made Adjutant and has just received his Captainscy. Jack will be remembered as the Tennis Champion of New Brunswick, by those interested in the game. His brother, Major Arthur R. Chipman, C.C., is a graduate of the R. M. C. Until recently he has held a very responsible position as Inspector of Munitions for Quebec. He has lately resigned this position and been appointed Major in the "244th Battalion 'Kitchener's Own'" of Montreal.

Major H. LeRoy Shaw, '94—'95

Before the war he was in Life Insurance business in Montreal. He is with the Canadian Grenadier Guards as 2nd in Command. His battalion has been in two heavy attacks in both of which the objective was reached but with the loss of 30 officers and 700 men. In November the Guards was taken out and reorganized and at that time Major Shaw was on a short leave in London. He speaks of Canadian soldiers as being a constant wonder in the war and that it is a privilege to lead them.

Major Frank H. Rowe, '08—'11

He went over in the 55th and was transferred to the 2nd Pioneers in which battalion he is at present.

Major Fletcher Pickles

He is in the Ammunition Column and has been at the Front from very early in the war.

Lieut. Col. Hayes, '84—'85

He is in the 85th as Medical Officer. Previous to the war he was active as a physician in Halifax and in politics as Conservative Organizer for Nova Scotia. His son, J. Bertram Hayes, '12, is in the 14th Howitzer Brigade.

FLYING CORPS

Six Mount Allison men are in the Flying Corps. Of these, Lieut. J. A. Cameron, '99—'10 and Ellis Heyson, A.C., '12—'13, have been incapacitated for service through accidents.

Capt. W. T. Wood, '04, went overseas, 2nd in Command of a Company in the 85th. The sure of the Flying Corps, in which service he has always had a great interest, was too much for him when he reached England and he resigned his commission in the 85th, and is now at a Flying Corps School.

It is with great regret that we chronicle the death of Dr. A. D. Smith who for many years has occupied the Wood Professorship of Classics at Mount Allison. For some time Dr. Smith was in failing health. Two years ago an Associate Professor was added to the Staff to relieve him of the greater part of his work. He still, however, retained one of his advanced classes and on Tuesday, March 27th, the day before he died, he met this class as usual. Wednesday morning he became suddenly ill and soon passed away. Students and faculty marched in procession to the church on Friday to attend his funeral where splendid addresses were delivered by Rev. H. E. Thomas '88—'00 and Dr. B. C. Borden, '78, President of the University. The greater part of these addresses we are printing in this issue of the Record.

Address by Rev. H. E. Thomas, '88—'00

When at an early hour on Wednesday morning last, Dr. Alfred D. Smith finished his earthly career he had gone beyond the work of three score years and ten, having been born on the 8th of December, 1842. His parents were Bermudians and the father, Rev. Thomas Smith was a Wesleyan Missionary. The son, Alfred, who was born on the Island of Nevis, (British West Indies), received his early education in the General Protestant Ac- ademy, St. Johns, Nfld., in which institution he held the position of usher at the early age of fourteen and of which institution he was afterward Assistant Master.

Subsequently he went to Nova Scotia and obtained a Normal School License at Truro. A year later he began his college course at Mount Allison in which he made a brilliant record, showing exceptional proficiency in the department of classics. Graduating in 1867 he taught for four years in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, returning to Mount Allison in 1871, where he received a Master's degree in arts, and where he took the chair of classics which he filled up to the time of his death.

In 1888 his scholarly attainments were recognized by Victoria College, Toronto, which conferred upon him the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws.

The life of this great man has been so inextricably associated with Mount Allison that it is fitting that some tribute should be paid by some one who is officially related to these institutions, but even those who are in no official relationship may yet make appraisement of the value of services rendered by one who, as a member of the faculty was ever alive to the interests of the institution and who as a teacher has exerted an influence which reaches across the continent.
