Rev. A. W. Dyser, '16

On April 7 in Boston Rev. A. W. Dyser was married to Miss Eleanor Black, formerly of Amherst. Miss Black is a former Mt. Allison student who had a long and interesting experience overseas as a nurse. Mr. Dyser is at present interested in educational work in connection with the settlement of returned soldiers in New Hampshire. He has leave of absence for the year from the N. S. Conference.

Frank H. Black was chosen to act as General Campaign Chairman, with the Hon. J. Wood as Campaign Treasurer, and Dr. J. M. Palmer as Campaign Secretary. The campaign will be carried aggressively into all quarters of the constituency of Mount Allison, with a campaign organisation in practically every church in the Maritime Provinces.

On the occasion of the banquet tendered the Board of Regents, during their semi-annual visit to Mount Allison, in November, President Borden brought out some highly interesting points in illustration of the dire financial straits into which Mount Allison has been forced during the past few years. Among other things which the institution has to face is the loss of members of the staff who, in a number of instances, have accepted offers from other institutions more fortunate, financially, than Mount Allison. In two instances, the continent was searched to replace two teachers who had accepted more remunerative offers elsewhere. Unless the salaries can be materially increased, Mount Allison must face losses even more serious to the staff. It is only because of the most profound loyalty that some of the professors now on the staff of Mount Allison have remained as long as they have for there have been numerous offers made to them, some of which actually were double the amount of their present salaries. But even such loyalty dare not be taxed too heavily, or Mount Allison will be found face to face with the alternative of securing only very young and inexperienced teachers, or those actually incompetent. Many of those now on the staff can be expected to remain only upon the condition that a living salary be paid them, and at the present time the finances of the institution do not permit of a single salary increase! The question that arises now is, shall we pay our teachers less than a living salary and secure the services of the young and inexperienced teachers, developing them for other colleges and universities who, sooner or later will draw them away with their more alluring salaries, or shall we, through an adequate endowment, provide adequate salaries for the present competent staff?

The residences and dormitories, too, are crowded to such an extent that this year it has been necessary to rent a large building, formerly used as a hotel, and re-equip it as a dormitory for some fifty or more young lady students. And with all this, it was impossible to accommodate all students applying for admittance. How much longer can this condition be expected to continue? Surely we cannot expect the young folks of our church to postpone their studies to attain a higher education to the end that we may build up a waiting list.

And what about a Library Building wherein may be accommodated the 25,000 odd volumes now comprising our library? At the present time, more than half of this number of books is out of circulation. Because there is no building on the campus either available or suitable for use as a library, more than half of the library is stored away in boxes and cases in ten different rooms in various buildings of the institution.

During the summer the Science Building has been remodelled to meet the immediate needs of the Science Department, having in view the changes its essential uses as a home for the McClellan School of Applied Science. The changes made have increased the accommodation by one third and has made the building greatly more efficient in other ways. A more detailed description of the changes made will appear in a later issue. The cost of the changes has been in the vicinity of $30,000 which sum will form a part of that sought in the forthcoming campaign.

Practically without exception, every other college and university on the continent has faced the same situation within the past few years that confronts Mount Allison today. It has been particularly acute since the signing of the Armistice, but those institutions have met their problems and are now forging ahead. For Mount Allison there is but one course to follow; if she is to maintain the place which she has so long held among the educational institutions of the Dominion she MUST secure this much needed Endowment for without it she cannot even continue, much less forge ahead as all other similar institutions, of whatever faith, are doing.
"21, have again returned to the staff, while G. E. Hudson, of Newfoundland and G. Wilfret Fletcher of the New Brunswick Normal School have been added to the staff. Miss Victoria Evans takes charge of the Stenography Dept.

The heating system has been extended to include the wing added last year. The dormitories have also been renovated and improvements have been made.

MOUNT ALLISON CAMPAIGN

With the big rally in Sackville, on January 19th, of approximately 170 prominent men and women of the Maritime Provinces, a large majority of them former Mount A. students who have interested themselves in the Endowment and Building Fund campaign for the old college, an announcement was made which was more or less startling to those gathered. This announcement was the fact that about fifty-one per cent of the 700 students enrolled, are not Methodists! Many thought that the larger proportion would belong to the denomination under which the educational work is maintained. The analysis, however, reveals that the majority are of other faiths.

This fact will be used in the campaign to show that Mount Allison is of more than denominational interest, that it is a Canadian institution, assisting in the great task of educating Canadian manhood and womanhood.

The patriotism of the students and graduates was another feature of the day. Col. F. B. Black, chairman of the Executive Committee in charge of the campaign, declared that no university in Canada had a more brilliant war record than that at Sackville. Catching a glimpse of the star-covered flag that hangs in the College Chapel, he exclaimed: "The war? I cannot speak of the war at all." Then he sat down quietly while the audience sat in solemn silence. A moment later he arose and added briefly: "Sufficient for me is it that Mount Allison's work in the great conflict was unsurpassed." The captured German gun resting on the campus in front of the University Residence is a sign of the part the old college took in the conflict.

Many references too, were made, to the loyalty of the professors of the institutions. It was said that many of these teachers had received offers from other schools by which they would have received salaries actually double those they are now receiving. Fidelity, however, to Mount Allison keeps them at their posts in spite of the tempting offers. "But", declared Colonel Black, "this cannot continue longer. They must be given adequate salaries, while new professors and teachers who are required cannot be secured at the remuneration that has prevailed in the past. The best men in the country are in demand for these
